The Snack Bear

"In the forest lives a very special bear—no one loves snacking as much as he does..."

Whether it's berries, honey, or pine bark, he happily nibbles and savors all kinds of treats.

But he's not the only one with a sweet tooth. The other animals, too, have their own weaknesses for treats.

And sometimes, they'll go to great lengths to get their paws on them...

A delightful tale of woodland creatures and their love for tasty morsels, brimming with charm and a touch of mischief. Perfect for young readers and snack enthusiasts alike!

©Mona Lorenz

Michaela Holzinger began writing stories as a child on an invisible typewriter. Later, she treated herself to a laptop (and a few snacks), and since then, she has published over 40 books for children and young adults. A trained educator, she lives and indulges in her sweet tooth with her family in Austria.

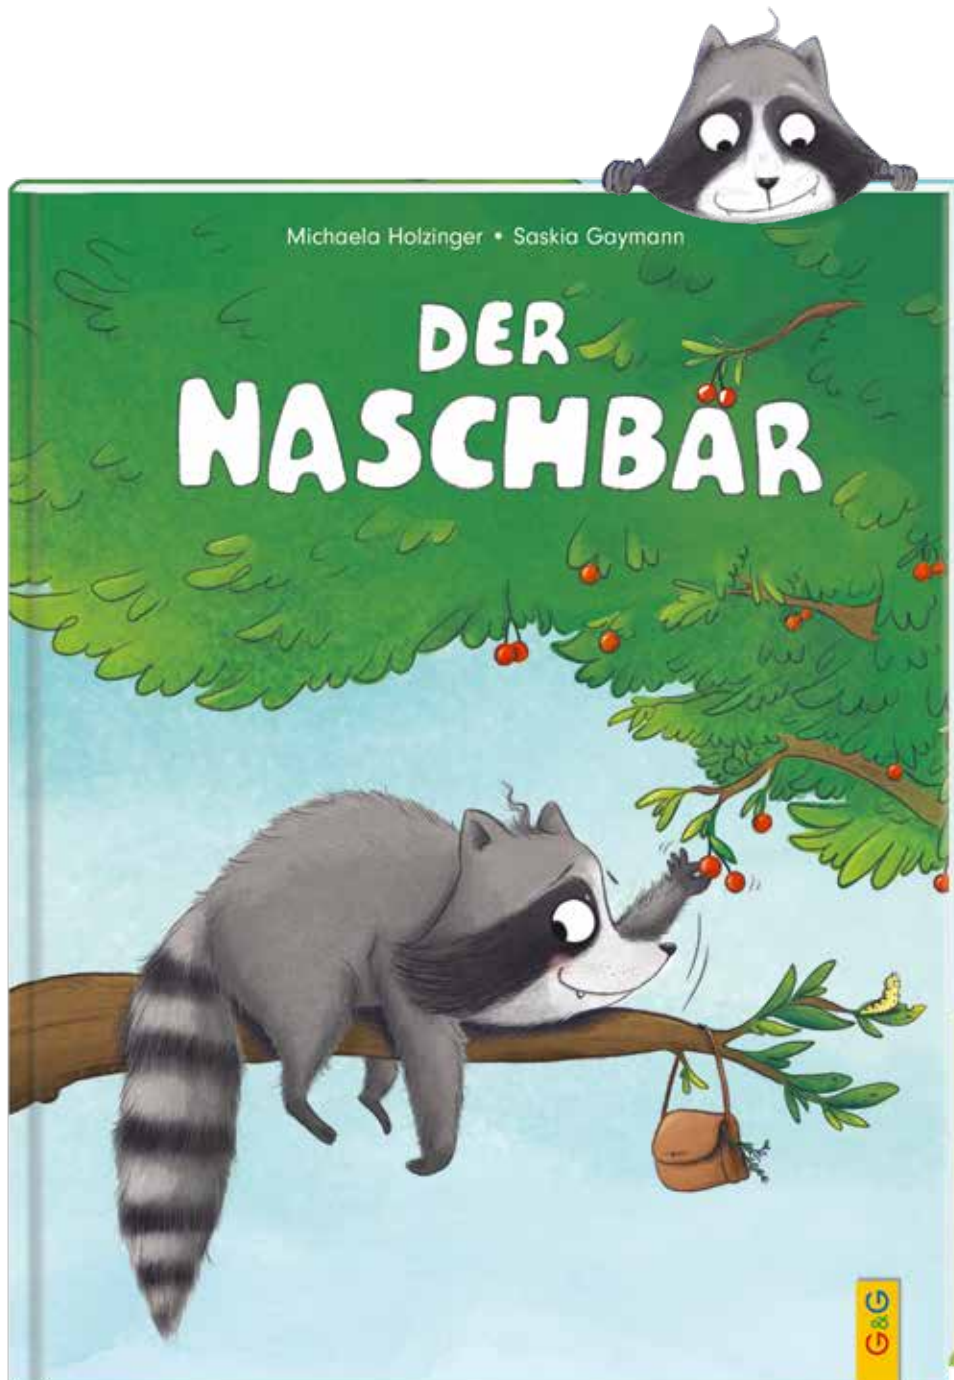

© Saskia Gaymann

Saskia Gaymann works as an illustrator and cartoonist in Cologne, where she creates big and small heroes, brought to life with her unmistakable style and sent on adventures. The combination of photography and drawing is one of her signature artistic elements. A passionate coffee enthusiast, she loves pairing it with copious amounts of chocolate.

Rosa Famosa – Magical Fun in the Goldfish Bowl

Rosa Famosa lives on the 5th floor of the 5th house on Dachshund Alley and is convinced that a famous dachshund must have lived there once—maybe even one that could talk. That would be amazing! Just like her goldfish Robert. But shh—nobody can know that Rosa is a magician. However, when she takes a bite of a cheese sandwich, her magical powers suddenly vanish—right when her best friend Odi needs her help. A plan is needed, and fast!

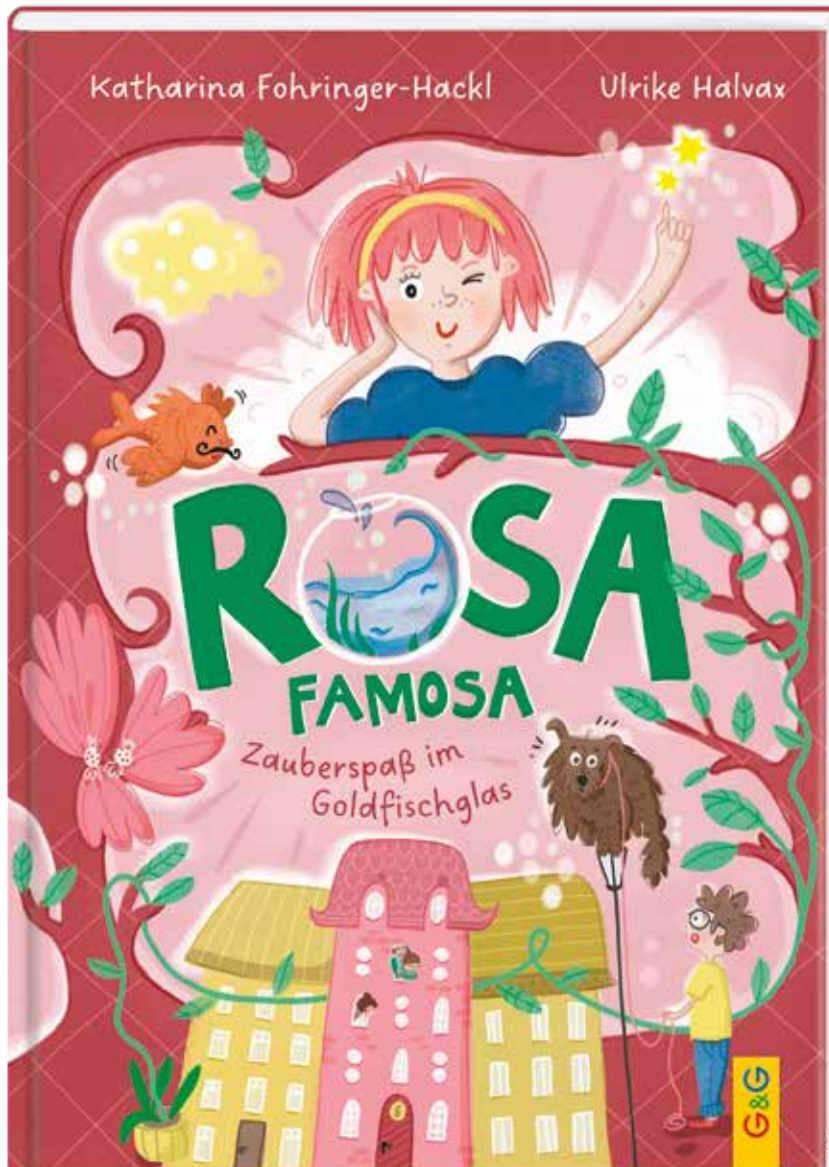

Katharina Fohringer-Hackl was born in 1987 in St. Pölten and at the moment lives with her family in the Vienna Woods region. After spending an extended period in Australia, she pursued studies in English and German at the University of Vienna. She is currently working as a teacher at a secondary school in Lower Austria.

Ulrike Halvax is an Austrian illustrator known for her cheerful style, capturing the diversity of people, animals, and nature with a humorous touch. She studied graphic design and photography in Linz and Vilnius, worked in Vienna and Munich, and now lives with her family near Graz.

Ich griff hinein und zog den springenden Schreck heraus. „Wo kommst du denn her?“, fragte ich und streichelte ihn vorsichtig. Der Schreck stolzierte über meine Finger und klackerte mit seinen Scheren. Er probierte ein Stückchen Wurmtorte. Dann sprang er aus der Hängematte und erkundete die Umgebung. Ich überlegte. Junus passte nicht besonders gut auf seine Haustiere auf. Und es war nett, ein wenig Gesellschaft zu haben. Vielleicht reichte es ja, wenn ich den Schreck erst morgen zu Junus zurückbrachte?

Home on the Cliff

On top of a high cliff there is a small house. As summer fades and the colors disappear, the house starts to feel something deep inside. It watches the birds flying south and dreams of more. What is it like to be so free? What does it feel like not to be alone?

A touching, poetic story that gently explores longing and the feeling of belonging, brought to life with vivid and expressive imagery.

Magali Franov (*2000) has been working as a freelance illustrator in Basel since graduating from the Lucerne School of Design & Art. Whether in her studio or on a train, she is almost always drawing. She is also a passionate (city) cyclist, bookworm, and newsletter writer.
